We have the opportunity to practice foresight each day by communing with God, reading His Word and living obediently.

In Luke 24:44 Christ reminds His followers that all of these things had been foretold. He said to them, "When I was with you before, I told you that everything written about me in the law of Moses and the prophets and in the Psalms must be fulfilled."

Jesus lived each day with a clear knowledge and awareness of what was to come—including His crucifixion, death, burial and resurrection. His foresight had a purpose, obedience to the Father, and provides salvation for those who would repent of sin and turn toward God.

Likewise, when we know and serve God, we must realize He is faithful to His Word. He meant what He said, and said what he meant. We are not led blindly. The Bible tells us our future, giving specific and practical instructions on how we should live as faithful followers in today's world. That He has designed a special plan and purpose for each of us. He can do the impossible, and he empowers the weak. In Luke 18:27, Jesus reassured us, "What is impossible with man is possible with God." As we move forward, let's learn the lessons of our past but also seize the opportunities of the present. And at the same time, see possibilities for the future.
